1972 SAKAI-BERKELEY STUDENT EXCHANGE ACTIVITIES SCHEDULE

August 5 (Saturday) ARRIVAL of the Students will be by chartered bus at the KOCH home, 2967 Avalon Avenue, between 4 p.m. and 5 p.m. Host families which will be picking up their students should be there by 4 p.m. Refreshments will be served, and there will be a short welcome program. All Host Families, Alumni Club members, and Berkeley-Sakai Association members are invited.

August 6 (Sunday) FIRST DAY IN BERKELEY During the preparation meetings of the SBSE in Sakai the Rev. Saito advised the students to attend a church service or meeting to understand the very important part the church has played in American life and history. Today the Rev. Saito will take part in the 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. services at the First Presbyterian Church of Berkeley at Dana and Channing. It is likely that the Sakai students would want to attend one of those services.

HINTS FOR HOSTS

It is important for the Host Family to show an interest and concern for the happiness and welfare of the student and to help him feel at home through relaxed and natural hospitality. Conversations may be quite personal. Good initial subjects are family life, food and eating habits, educational systems, his area of study, what he plans to do when he returns home, and what he hopes to see and do here.

Look up something in advance about Sakai & Japan, but avoid controversial matters of politics and religion. Such matters are of great importance to many students and will probably be discussed in student groups, but it is always wise to accept his lead and try never to "put him on the spot" by criticizing policies of his country or raising questions that could be awkward for him to answer.

Ask how to pronounce his name correctly. Pronunciation of Japanese is relatively simple. When written in Roman letters, called romaji, the vowels are pronounced as follows:

a	as in	car	ah	Long vowels usually written as combination of two:
e	as in	red	eh
i	as in	machine	ee	ei	a as in	mate	ay
o	as in	cocoa	oh	ai	i as in	sigh	eye
u	as in	pull	oo

Each syllable ends with a vowel, and each is usually given equal stress accent. For example: Sakai = Sah-keye      Saito = Seye-toh

If the student has trouble with the spoken word, please speak slowly and clearly, but not loudly. A smile and a laugh will go far in bridging the communication gap. Don't be reticent about signs and gestures. It has been the experience of previous hosts that the courteous students tend to smile and answer "yes" even if uncertain of what has been said. If you must convey an important message -- such as a time to be ready, to eat, etc. -- print it for your guest. These young people have been reading and writing English for several years but have little speaking experience. If you run into real difficulty, a list of emergency numbers is attached so that you may call someone for clarification.

Our food is quite different than Japanese, so it may be wise to serve simple meals with plenty of vegetables at first. Explaining the contents of a dish will be helpful. Eating American food will be as much of an experience for these students as any other part of their trip, and they are looking forward to it.

Acquaint your guest with your home, especially the bedroom and bathroom facilities he will use. Feel free to explain everything, and if your guest shows any hesitancy, take the lead and just say, "This is the way we do it" and demonstrate. Explain also, as the opportunity arises, the family relationships and how the family functions. American families are much freer in activities than Japanese, particularly the freedom that children have to come and go.

If you find it inconvenient to provide transportation at any time, feel free to call other Host Families for assistance. You are being asked to keep your guest for half of the time he is in Berkeley. Each student will move to another home on August 13. The two families can get together on a convenient time for making the exchange, and for a short review of the kind of entertainment and trips which have been shared in order to avoid duplication.

Many students who have participated in this Exchange Program report their most memorable times were spent with Host Families. Our aim is to give our guests an opportunity to participate in American family life, and to visit nearby events and areas which we think will provide a good cross-section of life as we know it. We know your family will enjoy this outstanding experience!
